Ruth Arcand Park Multi-Use Trail Rehabilitation Project

Ruth Arcand Park is a 330 acre public park, and home to the William C. Chamberlain Equestrian Center (WCCEC), two public schools, one private school, a golf course, and over 5 miles of multi-use trails used by hikers, runners, skiers, skijorers, and dog walkers. The park is also home to Rainbow Connection Therapeutic Riding Program.

The WCCEC is managed by the Anchorage Horse Council (AHC) who was also responsible for the construction of the park's trails since approximately 30 years ago. As a strictly volunteer organization with no public funding, these trails have seen minimal maintenance over the years and are in great need of repair. These improvements will address water quality issues, mud, impassable areas due to trail ponding, and return the park's trails to usable condition in all areas, and for all users.
